We, the Senior Class of 1956, being somewhat sound of mind and body, dispose that the bequests hereinafter mentioned constitute our Last Will and Testament:

I, Joe Dominguez, bequeath to Lewis Dayton my sunny disposition and excess girl friends from Deming and all points East.

I, Alfred Johnson, direct that my old automobile tires, basketball shoes and whatever else I have accumulated during my school years, be divided equally between Edward Garcia and Clyde Yarbrough.

I, Victor Somoza, leave to Erwin Underwood my artistic ability; and my limousine, including an assortment of old license plates, one slightly used nylon stocking, three pounds of used chewing gum under the dash, two bobbing monkeys and one moth-eaten parakeet.

I, James Moorhead, haven't much to leave except Gertrude Wiley's address. This I bequeath to anyone who is interested.

I, Andy Peterson, leave my stability and quiet disposition to Rey Tenney. I also leave my little black book, which I no longer need, to my little brother, Hugh.
